Last Will and Testament
theClass of '74

We, the senior class of W.H.S. of the year ninteen hundred and seventy-four, do hereby make and ordain this to be our last will and testament to the so-called students and underpaid faculty of W.H.S.

I, Danny Abrahamson, can not afford to will anything because I need absolutely everything I've got.

I, Jayne Abrahamson, will everything that is left to Mary Raymond and Ceila Stearns.

I, Joe Abrahamson, will my basketball ability to Roger Abrahamson.

I, Denise Brandom, will leave all of my poor grades with W.H.S. as souvenirs.

I, Janice Flett, will my great basketball ability to my brother Larry.

I, Stella Jennings, will my broken tooth to Marty Mc and Danny A., (and also the bill for fixing it.)

I, Larry LeBret, will my school books to any sucker that wants them.

I, Sue Morgan, will my position as center on the girls' basketball team to GoGo and her elevated tennis-shoes.

I, Carol Stearns, will my cheerleading position to any loudmouth who wants it and to Celia and Ronc I leave all the "Bozos", "Orches", one pair of binoculars, and watch out for those falling hair ties.

I, Vernon Stearns, will anything to anybody who wants it.

I, Marsha Wynecoop, will my quiet ways to anyone who needs them.

We, the class of 1974, being of sound minds and bodies???? will to all others not heretofore mentioned our very best wishes and sincere gratitude for the help which we have received while attending this school.

Signed and sealed on this day of confusion (May 20, 1974)

Fifth Grade

The fifth graders are an active group, experiencing many new areas of growth.

The boys have really been on the ball (basketball, that is). They are a force to reckon with on any basketball court. The girls are also enjoying many new and varied experiences, including flutophone, girls chorus and baton twirling. The fifth graders receive an hour of arts and crafts per week, where many of them have proven quite creative.

If you were to ask a fifth grader what his favorite class was, the answer would probably be an automatic "Lunch" or perhaps "Recess."

The 6th graders have had a year of challenge and fun. They have done interesting science experiments, raised fish, drawn many maps, and had poster contests. Academic learning included fractions, part of speech, and even a few words in French and Spanish. It has been a good year for us all.
